Market Update

INTERNATIONAL REALTY

A MESSAGE FROM

Jeffrey Gibson

San Francisco Brokerage Manager

As San Francisco started to emerge from the pandemic in the first quarter of 2022, re-energized buyers continued to compete for a relatively small pool of available listings, driving down the median days on market across most neighborhoods compared to the same quarter in 2021, according to data from the San Francisco Multiple Listing Service.

Prices continued to rise gradually, with the median single-family home price hitting another record high of $1.86M, though price trends were mixed across different parts of the city. For example, while District 4 in the southwest part of San Francisco saw single-family home prices rise by 27% compared to last year, most areas saw more moderate gains and District 8 in the north actually saw prices drop 13% year over year.

Among the most striking trends this quarter was the precipitous drop in median days on market in many areas. Among our featured districts, each one saw median days on market for condominiums decline by at least 19%, with many falling 30-50% or more. The trend for single-family homes was similar, with days on market falling by an incredible 55% in District 9, an area that includes SoMa, the Mission and Bernal Heights, to just 17 days from a recent high of 38 days in 2021. According to the MLS, median days on market for all property types across the city dropped to an all-time low in February 2022 to just 12 days.

Given the fast pace of this market and the conditions faced by both buyers and sellers, it is more important than ever to benefit from the advice of experienced experts in the industry. Sotheby's International Realty is proud to be associated with agents who outperform their peers, achieving the highest average sales volume per agent in the city and recording the highest average sale price. As the Bay Area's luxury leader, Sotheby's International Realty also has the #1 market share by office for properties over $3M, which helped the brokerage achieve a record $4.6B in sales last year. From Wine Country to Silicon Valley and across the globe, we look forward to being of service to you.
